Fairfield County, Ohio, Recognizes Sunshine Week and Reaffirms Its Commitment to Open Government

Lancaster, Ohio – The Fairfield County Board of Commissioners is proud to participate in Sunshine Week, observed March 15–21, 2026. Sunshine Week is a national initiative highlighting the importance of public access to government records and meetings, as well as transparency in public decision-making.

Fairfield County joins communities nationwide in championing the public’s right to know and encouraging residents to be engaged, informed participants in local government. Transparency remains a cornerstone of effective governance, ensuring that residents have clear and timely access to information about county operations.

“Open government builds trust,” said Commissioner Steve Davis, Board President. “We are committed to providing timely access to public records, maintaining open and easily accessible meetings, and ensuring our residents understand how decisions are made and how public funds are used.”

Fairfield County continually upholds Ohio’s Public Records Law and Open Meetings Act by:

- Providing accessible public records through multiple channels
- Conducting properly noticed open public meetings
- Offering guidance to help residents navigate public information requests

Residents are encouraged to take advantage of these resources to learn more about county operations, public meetings, and ongoing initiatives. Additional information about public records requests, meeting schedules, and county services is available on the Fairfield County website or by contacting the Fairfield County Commissioners’ Office.

Sunshine Week serves as a reminder that informed communities are stronger communities. Fairfield County remains committed to maintaining openness and public trust.
