Fairfield County Auditor Updates Real Estate Website to Include Tool Tutorials

Lancaster, Ohio – The Fairfield County Auditor’s Real Estate website has been updated to include tutorials on how to use frequently accessed tools.

Based upon questions and requests from users of the website, tutorials have been developed for three of the new tools available on the website. They include how to use the Levy Calculator, Property Tax Estimator, and the “Buffer” tools to assist with listing adjoining properties for certain permitting applications.

Another important section of the website allows users to download data from a selection of the GIS features. To assist with this process, the office has developed a set of additional tutorials to guide users on how to download a PDF of the selected Subdivision and/or Survey Plats shown on the website.

County Auditor Carri Brown stated, “We have received a lot of positive feedback about the updates to technology and the real estate assessment website. Yet, even with the positive feedback, there are several changes, and it is good to provide tutorials to highlight some of the useful features of the improvements. This is all part of our ongoing civic education and outreach efforts to add value.”

The tutorials can be found on the real estate website at: <https://realestate.co.fairfield.oh.us/site-links/tutorials-for-website/>.

For more information or questions regarding the tutorials or the website, please contact the County Auditor’s Real Estate Office at (740) 652-7030.
